

Not Gumming up the Works

Austin and I were taking a short trip. After we were in the car and on our way, he said to me, "Thank you for not gumming up the works," meaning thank you for not causing us to be late and being a problem. I told him that there was a higher level than that.

There is a higher level than merely "not gumming up the works." God has given me an assignment as a wife of being joyful, respectful, kind, loving, and helpful to my husband. Hopefully all of that includes "not gumming up the works!"
